Article Type: Research paper

Full Title:*

DUMMY: Felix the Cat

Abstract:*

This is a dummy article to test the new EVISE system.

Annoying, it forces me to enter something.

Keywords:

Keywords should be separated by semi-colons, e.g. capillary electrophoresis; liquid chromatography.

felix; cat

References:*

- References should be numbered and added in numerical order starting from 1.
- Each reference should start from a new line.
- There should not be any extra line breaks in the reference text.

Which format should one use?

Annoying,normally I do not want to enter a single reference like this, but use latex instead!

Coverletter: Why does this need to be a separate file? I guess usually, this is going to be a single line or just a form letter.

Why do I need to enter the abstract again? And as a separate file, no less!

Again, why a separate file? This seems to be a nuisance…
